As the number of students with ASDs continues to rise, educators will be required to have a command of their legal obligations under both state and federal law. Legal references will include relevant sections of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act of 2004 (IDEIA 2004), Illinois Administrative Code, and No Child Left Behind Act. Professionals attending this course will leave with an understanding of the Diagnostic Statistical Manual 4th Edition (DSM-IV) criteria, child find obligations, evaluation, programming options, behavioral planning and effective tools for addressing parents. Case law examples will be discussed in an interactive manner in order to fully appreciate the conflicts that led parties to litigation. In addition, proactive strategies for effective problem-solving and communication will be explored.
